Moonshining was more than a past time in the mountains of Western North Carolina, it was a way of life. Moonshining came to the mountains of Western North Carolina with the arrival of the Scotch-Irish shortly after the American Revolution. Fleeing new taxes on Whiskey, they headed for the secluded mountains with their still's and what few belongings they had. The legend of the moonshiner is still alive today. Moonshining is in my blood and like my family before me I pride myself on quality not quantity. Using old family recipes from my family and Raymond's we make quality moonshine with all natural ingredients, Oak barrels, and a traditional moonshine still.
